Subject: Martinez v. County of Alameda - New FBNS Suite Implemented

Hi Tim,

I am writing to inform you that the CRO has implemented the new FBNS suite, which is now accessible online and via the kiosks in the CRO, including the kiosk reserved for persons with disabilities, equipped with the JAWS software. We understand that JAWS is compatible with the new FBNS suite. Additionally, the kiosk is still equipped with the blank PDF of the FBNS, should any issues arise with the new FBNS suite, such that a person with a disability could still complete the FBNS using the kiosk. Further, as previously noted in the County's pleadings, should a person with a disability have any trouble or questions using either the new FBNS suite or the blank PDF of the FBNS on the kiosk, a CRO staff member will be able to view the FBNS on the kiosk's screen, direct the individual to the subject items, which the individual can then address him or herself using the kiosk. In the event a disabled individual were to complete and submit an FBNS electronically that was not properly completed, a CRO staff member will assist the individual with completing a correct FBNS on the kiosk by directing the individual to the items which were not initially completed properly, when the individual is present in the CRO to print, sign, and/or file the form. Upon request, a CRO staff member will also read the information in the FBNS back to the individual with a disability so that the individual can confirm the information is accurate. A physical signature is still required. To this end, the CRO will print a copy of the FBNS for the patron (whether the FBNS was completed in the CRO or online) and assist the individual with signing the form when the individual is in the CRO.
